

Which other regulations may affect my farming activities?

Other state and local agencies may also have requirements affecting your agricultural activity. You can contact these agencies through the links below.

Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department

The Tacoma – Pierce County Health Department has regulations that may apply to various aspects of agriculture, such as waste disposal, water supply, and chemical spills. Please visit their website for more information.

<http://www.tpchd.org/>

Washington State Department of Agriculture

The Washington State Department of Agriculture provides a list of applicable regulations, permits, and certifications concerning many agricultural activities, including animal health, commodities, dairy products, and pesticide management.

<http://agr.wa.gov/>

Washington State Department of Ecology

Ecology's Environmental Permit Handbook is your one-stop shop for details about permits and information about other local, state, and federal environmental permits, approvals, or licenses.

<http://www.ecy.wa.gov/>

This is a reference tool only, and is not a substitute for codes and zoning regulations. You must ensure that your project meets the requirements of all applicable codes and regulations.

